

YONI STEAM MANUAL

Welcome to the inner temple of the Rose within.

A B O U T

Since ancient times wise women have practised the ritual art of Yoni, or herbal pelvic steaming, to connect, nourish, heal, reawaken and harness the healing powers of the Womb.

This art incorporates the essence and medicine of water, plants and flowers to support the natural self-healing and regenerative nature of the Womb.

Yoni steaming is a gentle and potent way to celebrate all phases of womanhood. It re-educates us on integrating practices that empower body autonomy and Womb, heart and mind coherence.

It is a gentle way to receive the medicinal properties of water and plants. Steam itself is a beautiful soft light conduit of water that transports the crystalline nature of the water and the healing qualities of the herbs, plants and flowers.

The steam delicately enters the yoni, womb and pelvis, unlocking keys and magical potentials within. The yoni steam offers benefits to our physical, emotional and energetic nature.

The womb stores information, memories, and imprints deep hidden within. The Yoni Steam is a non-invasive modality that travels through the yoni and womb.

The yoni tissues are delicate, super absorbent, and rich in blood supply, meaning each plant or flower's medicinal qualities directly enter the bloodstream.

WHAT YOU NEED

It would be best if you had a seat/stool; it can be a DIY stool, or buy one from a crafter.

A cloth to cover your lower and upper bodies if you wish to be fully enveloped. The fabric or towels contain and direct the steam. It is recommended that you wear socks if you feel cold on your feet. I also love to cover my whole body during the ritual.

Get a dedicated pot with a lid for Yoni Steaming. Fill the pot with at least 3 to 4 cups of spring water.

There are different steaming methods. I prefer to bring the spring water to a gentle, almost boiling temperature. Then, add the herbs and simmer for a few minutes.

As you alchemise the herbs and water, you can sing and recite mantras and intentions ushering powerful healing light. Then, turn off the heat and steam the herbs and flowers in the water for 10 minutes. When my stool is set up, I transfer the steam to another dedicated pot in my DIY stool.

Add two handfuls of organic medicinal herbs, flowers or roots, dry or fresh. It is recommended to use fresh when you can, especially in the summer months, to forage for these beautiful, magical herbs, plants and flowers.

Create a dedicated space in your home, yoga space or outside. In the summer months, I steam outside under the Moonlight. In the winter, I sit by the fire. Before beginning, please make sure you have what you need: pen, journal, candle, sage, and flowers.

Set sacred space by lighting candles, smudging and invoking the Goddess and medicine of the flower/herbs. I like to sit in front of an open fire or bathe in the Moonlight.

Prepare your throne- stool is vital, and this incorporates placing the steam in the bowl, preparing your body and then coming seated for 20-30 minutes. Wait another 5 minutes if the steam is too hot. Then, cover yourself with your sacred cloth and towels to channel the mist. Whilst steaming, meditate, breathe, be still, sing, recite a mantra and enjoy.

THE WORLD
Is as we Dream it.

CONTRADICTIONS

The Yoni Steam is only for some, so please use your inner guidance or speak to a professional if guided. I recommend speaking to a herbalist for deeper insight into plants or flowers if you feel like doing so.

HEAT Remember, steam is hot. So go slowly, and be sure to check the temperature of the steam before you steam the Yoni.

Use only Organic plants, herbs, roots or flowers.

Do not steam if you have an IUD.

Do not steam if there is excess heat in the body due to fever.

Do not steam when bleeding- steams are restorative before and after but not during mensuration.

Pregnancy- do not stream during pregnancy.

If you are trying to conceive, do not steam after ovulation or during the luteal phase of your cycle.

Essential oils are too strong for the yoni tissues. Using whole and organic plants is key to receiving the essence and medicine innate within the plant or flower.

Water- use spring or filtered water.

SACRED YONI REFLEXES

Women have sacred rose gates within the Yoni and womb- called reflect points in the Taoist tradition. There are practice and feminine rituals of tantra taught within the mysteries school that explore these Rose gates and petals of wisdom. First, however, we will focus on Taoist intimate reflex points within the Yoni.

The reflex points affect and heal the whole body from the feet upwards and have a symbiotic relationship with the entire body.

Like the ones on our body, these reflex points connect and correspond to specific meridians, organs, emotions, neural patterns, and physical experiences.

The reflex points can be activated through conscious breath, soul tantra yoga, intention, touch and the use of the yoni egg.

Once activated, they receive more significant levels of vibrancy and life force, which over time opens the 'Body' to new and higher levels of sensitivity, sensuality and sexual expression.

In the spiritual lineage of the Rose, it is believed that the sexual organs are the root of all life.

Sexual energy; is life energy. They are the same.

Next is a guide on the particular reflex points and the sounds you can use to guide healing and activation when you begin to explore your anatomy.

.Kidney – Entrance of the yoni and Goddess/G-spot area. When out of balance, we feel fearful, and when healthy, the kidney corresponds to greater calm and peacefulness. The sound connected to this point is Woo (like blowing out a candle.)

Liver – The liver point is in the area of the Goddess G-spot and a little further in the vaginal canal. Activating the liver opens the body to healing and resolving deep tension, anger, and rage through love, connection and harmony. When connecting to this point, the sound to use is SHHHH (tongue near the palate.)

Spleen/Pancreas – The Spleen/Pancreas point is the zone before the cervix, and when out of balance, we might feel worried, anxious and low in self-esteem. When we heal and connect to this point, we release built-up tension and become grounded, empowered and centred. When connecting to this point, the sound to use is WHOOOO (from the throat guttural).

SACRED YONI REFLEXES

Lung – The lung can be expressed as the power to receive life and pure prana; it's connected to the immune system and is an organ of reciprocity. The lungs and our breath patterns are vital in understanding our state of being and are related to Greif, sorrow, and damp conditions of the body and mind. The lung point is often the most untouched area within the Yoni, as it's located around the cervix rather than the cervix itself. When it's healthy, we feel confident and self-assured. The sound to use when connecting to this point is SSSSS (tongue behind teeth.)

Heart – The deepest core of our inner sanctuary of Truth and Love. Our temple of love within our Yoni is located at the cervix itself. When we awaken this point, it can ignite an innate powerful release of all memories and energetic imprints related to the heart, such as heartbreak and separation. This is the most profound healing point and expands the heart into new blissful states of trust and passion. In addition, we can experience more powerful heart-felt orgasms in communion with this point. The sound is HAWWW (mouth wide open) when connecting to this point.

Enjoy your journey of Divine Feminine Remembrance.

Blessed Be.

Chloe.
